CHARLES Z. MIHALYI

The late Charles Z. Mihalyi was born in Estergom, Hungary. He came to the United States in 1904. Soon thereafter he entered into the real estate business in New York. The two generations he spent as a successful broker were a record for the state.

Although Mr. Mihalyi soon became a thoroughly acclimatized American, he retained a keen interest in the history of the country of his origins, and in Central Europe, throughout a long life. An ardent numismatist from boyhood, he naturally specialized in the coins and medals of Hungary and Transylvania. His collecting career spanned 65 years. With a broad command of languages he didn't wait for the coins to come to him but shrewdly sought them out abroad, particularly in Germany, before and after both World Wars. As a result he was able to put together an outstanding collection of material of the highest quality, as the readers of this catalogue will quickly discover for themselves.

In 1962, Mr. Mihalyi was presented his 25 year silver ANA membership medal. He was a member of the American Numismatic Society, the Canadian Numismatic Association, the Northern New York Coin Club, Jefferson County Historical Society, and was the first life member and first curator of the Lewis County, N.Y., Historical Society.

In 1939, First individual award was presented Mr. Mihalyi during National Coin Week. His "One Thousand Years of Hungarian History in Coins" won first prize in 1960 at Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada. At the International Convention in 1962 in Detroit, he won third prize. Mr. Mihalyi was presented the 1965 Paul Schilling Award at the ANA Convention in Cleveland.

He was also a member of many civic organizations and very active in community service.

TERMS OF SALE

1. This sale is a public auction sale conducted by licensed and bonded auctioneers.
2. All coins and medals offered in this catalog are guaranteed to be genuine and as described.
3. No Commission will be charged for executing Bids. Bidders must pay all Postage, Express and Insurance charges. These bids will be treated as your limit for each lot. In general, we start the bidding on each lot at a small advance over the next highest bid, thereby attempting to purchase the lot as reasonably as possible for you.
4. We cannot be responsible for any errors in bidding. Please make certain you bid on the correct lot.
5. When identical mail bids are submitted, preference is given to the first received. We therefore urge you to mail your bid sheet early.
6. Coins, Medals, etc., are sold so much per LOT, unless otherwise stated. No lots will be broken up.
7. All claims for adjustments must be made in writing within 5 days after the delivery of the goods. Title remains with STACK'S until items are paid for in full. No lots may be returned without our written permission.
8. The highest bidder shall be the buyer, and if any dispute arises between two or more bidders, the lot in question shall be immediately put up and sold again. No lots will be put up out of their numerical order. The auctioneer reserves the right to refuse any bid he feels is not made in good faith.
9. Unknown bidders must establish credit references or deposit 25% of their bids. We cannot accept bids from minors.
10. Auction Sales are strictly for cash and must be paid for promptly in U. S. funds. Personal checks are acceptable with proper identification.
11. All lots delivered in New York State are subject to applicable Sales Tax.

THE CHARLES Z. MIHALYI COLLECTION OF COINS AND MEDALS OF HUNGARY AND TRANSYLVANIA

Imperial Coins from Hungarian and Transylvanian Mints

The Emperor's mints extended from Ensisheim in Alsace to Nagybanya in Transylvania. The mints operating during the time and in the area covered by the Mihalyi collection were a function of the fluctuating boundaries of the imperial domains.

Some pieces included in this section were probably intended as medals, but they may have seen circulation as coins. The presentation here is as Mr. Mihalyi collected them.

Principal references employed include the well known Davenport volumes, as well as the classic works on Transylvanian coins:

A. Hess, Die Siebenbürgischen Münzen des Fürstlich Montenuovoschen Münzcabinets, Frankfurt am Main, 1880.

and

A. Resch, Siebenbürgische Münzen and Medaillen von 1538 bis zur Gegenwart, Hermannstadt, 1901.

among others.

PLATE Much speculation has surrounded the explanation of the origin of this curious taler. Schulthess (1840) offered several alternatives for the meaning of the letters I K/E M. These range from I(eder) K(aiser) E(in) M(ensch) – stemming from the emperor's supposed preoccupation with thoughts of death in 1655 – to the more improbable I(esus) K(ristus) E(t) M(aria). Davenport simply notes "For Johann Kewidzky and Elis. Medarlpy," scarcely a clarification of the problem. Hirsch (1962) suggests that Elisabeth Madarasz, wife of Johann Keviczky, Judex Primarius Cassoviensis, had the piece struck and distributed at her husband's funeral. Because they were minted without imperial authorization, the coins were later withdrawn. While this is persuasive, an American cataloguer noted (1971) (apparently from Schulthess) that "there is still no valid explanation of this curious and very rare taler."	(350.00)

COINS OF HUNGARIAN NOBLE FAMILIES RAISED TO THE RANK OF PRINCES OF THE HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE

BATTHYANI

From this old Hungarian family came the counts of Nemet Ujvar. Count Karl Joseph, after fifty years of distinguished service, was granted the title of prince of the empire in 1764, along with the coinage right. The name of Strattmann on the coins of his great nephew Ludwig came from his grandmother's side.

The Eszterhazys were probably the richest and most famous Hungarian noble family, already prominent in the 12th century. Paul Eszterhazy, hereditary count of Forchtenstein, was granted the title of prince of the empire by Leopold I in 1687. Nicholas Joseph, the only Eszterhazy to exercise the coinage right, has been best known as the patron of Haydn.

COINS OF THE INDEPENDENT PRINCES OF TRANSYLVANIA

Transylvania occupied the extreme eastern portion of the Kingdom of Hungary at the end of the 19th century—what is now the western part of Rumania. Its German name—Siebenbürgen—is usually derived from the seven principal fortified towns or “Bürge” founded by German colonists, though some authorities prefer to connect it with the Cibin mountains on the south frontier. The evidence of the Transylvanian arms as seen on the coins suggests that the former derivation is the proper one, a principal element being seven fortified towers.

After the defeat of King Louis II at Mohacs in 1526 ushered in the most miserable period of Hungarian history, Transylvania became effectively independent from the kingdom of Hungary. It did not escape the violent history of the times, caught up despite its favorable geographical position in the wars between the Turks and the Habsburg emperors and with the wars of the Reformation. Thus “independent” Transylvania—a Protestant land—fought Turk and emperor alike in the 16th and 17th centuries. Its boundaries shifted to and fro as did the boundaries of those other parts of Hungary owing allegiance to the Emperor or the Sultan depending on the tides of war. At the end of the 17th century its independence ended, and it was returned to Habsburg dominion. In 1765 Maria Theresa made it a Grand Principality of the empire.

The coins of the independent princes of Transylvania were prized for their beauty even in their own day and were often made into jewelry and kept as curios. The princes, like the rulers of other mining states, favored large coins such as talers and their multiples. The men attracted by the mint authorities of this remote and insecure country produced some remarkable pieces. They commonly chose to represent the prince in half length. If they often made the figure clumsy and ill-proportioned, they overlaid these faults by their wealth of carefully rendered detail, either of armor or the exotic half-oriental costume affected by the Hungarian nobility. Their portraiture was frank to the point of caricature, but this treatment was well-suited to the wily and capable Transylvanian princes. The decorative heraldic designs for the reverse were especially well engraved.

John II Sigismund, 1559-1571

After the battle of Mohacs in 1526, John Zapolya succeeded in rendering himself effectively independent. Although the Hungarian crown fell to the house of Austria, Zapolya was a rival king of Hungary. Under the terms of the Treaty of Nagy Varad in 1538, Hungary was divided between Ferdinand I and Zapolya, who retained the royal title. Upon Zapolya's death Ferdinand was to be his successor. When Zapolya died in 1540, however, his widow, Isabella of Poland, had her infant son John II Sigismund proclaimed king. War broke out between Isabella, supported by the Turks, and Ferdinand. In 1551 Ferdinand succeeded in pressing his claim, and Transylvania was occupied by the imperial forces. In 1556 Isabella and her son again received the homage of the nobles, and the imperial forces were forced to withdraw. From 1556 to 1559 Isabella ruled as regent for John II Sigismund. From 1559 to 1571 he ruled alone.

Gabriel Bethlen, 1613-1629

Gabriel Bethlen was elected prince in October 1613. In the war against the Emperor Ferdinand II he conquered nearly the whole of Hungary and accepted the Hungarian crown. By the Treaty of Nicolsburg in 1621 he relinquished Hungary in exchange for the duchies of Oppeln and Ratibor and the title of imperial prince. He again took arms against the Emperor in the cause of Hungarian protestantism, which resulted in declarations of freedom of religion at Vienna in 1624 and Pressburg in 1626. During his reign Transylvania enjoyed its golden age. He died in 1629 at the age of 49 years.

George Rakoczi II, 1648-1660

George Rakoczi II was elected the successor of his father George I, under whom Transylvania enjoyed some international importance as the chief bulwark of Protestantism in eastern Europe. Rakoczi II plunged into the troubled sea of Polish politics in 1657, hoping to win the Polish throne. He not only failed miserably, but overwhelmed Transylvania in his own ruin by leaving open the door to the Turks, who returned to depose him.

HISTORICAL MEDALS

Hungary And The Turkish Wars

The following group of medals were struck to commemorate the Victories of the Imperial forces over the Turks in the 17th and 18th century. Apart from the siege of Vienna itself in 1683, the military events so vividly recalled by these numismatic souvenirs were largely fought in Hungary and Transylvania. They provide an unusual record of a period in Eastern Europe that in many ways was more violent and disastrous than anything experienced in the same area during World War II, and the settlements following that conflict, with which we are now so familiar.

It is appropriate that the first piece described records the death of King Louis II at the bloody battle of Mohacs on the 29th of August, 1526, when the entire Hungarian army of 24,000 men was annihilated by troops of the Sultan Suleiman the Magnificent. The Ottoman Turks had first crossed the Hellespont from Asia Minor in 1353, to begin a career of conquest that made them the terror of Europe for the next three and a half centuries. The early years of this period saw them skirmishing on the perimeters with a constantly increasing pressure. After the Battle of Mohacs virtually all Hungary was in subjugation as the Turks girded themselves for what was to be their final push toward the West in the next century.

The conquest of substantial portions of Hungary and Transylvania, however, eventually resulted in strong local "Resistance" movements. The most significant of these was led by Count Emerich Tököly who successfully challenged the Hapsburgs in those few Hungarian provinces still under Imperial control between 1678 and 1682. His success aroused the Turks to one final tremendous effort that brought them to the very gates of Vienna in 1683, the high water mark of their incursions into Western Europe. Thanks to the aid of Jan Sobieski of Poland, and the sturdy defence within the city, organized by von Starhemberg, the attack was beaten off. Among the spoils of victory was a great quantity of coffee. The Austrians became addicted to the beverage and its use spread to the rest of Europe and the New World in the succeeding centuries.

After 1683 the Turkish tide began to recede, although not without stiff resistance and sometimes significant successes against the Christian Forces. The Emperor Leopold I was fortunate in possessing some capable generals whose names are still highly regarded by military historians. One of these was the Margrave of Baden, but the most renowned of all was Prince Eugene of Savoy, later to be the colleague of Marlborough.

The medals offered here carefully record the successes of the Imperial armies. The failures are noted only by inference. For example, Belgrade was taken in 1688 but had to be recaptured again by Prince Eugene in 1717. The city had to be freed from Turkish grip once again as late as 1789. Altogether the medals offer a very clear picture of the Turkish Wars in Hungary between 1683 and the first quarter of the 18th century.

It is interesting that many of the pieces were in the collection of the German numismatic scholar and collector, Dr. P. Julius of Heidenberg. His holdings were dispersed by Otto Helbing in Munich in a series of Sales held in the 1930's. Gaettens, a well know German dealer, made substantial purchases at these Sales. Much of the Gaettens holdings were sold in the 1950's when Mr. Mahalyi was able to acquire many of the fine pieces being offered here.

Because so few examples of this series have been available on the market in recent years, meaningful estimates do not seem practicable. Indeed this substantial offering from the Mihalyi collection may well serve to provide an indication of current values for an exceptionally interesting and historic medallic series.

TRANSYLVANIA

Politically, Transylvania once formed part of the Roman Province of Dacia. After the withdrawal of Rome the country was swept by waves of migratory tribes until it was seized by Stephen I in 1004 and incorporated into Hungary. When the Hungarian crown came to the House of Austria in 1526 a native Transylvanian Prince managed to maintain a degree of autonomy with the help of neighboring Turks. After the defeat of the Turks before Vienna in 1683 their influence in Eastern Europe began to wane. In 1699, by the peace of Carlovitz, Turkey acknowledged the suzerainty of the Emperor Leopold I over all Transylvania. Leopold united it with Hungary.

In 1765 the Empress Maria Theresa made the area into a Grand Principality in its own right. Nevertheless, troubles between the Rumanian majority and the Magyar ruling minority culminated in revolution in 1848. The outcome was a short period of autonomy for Transylvania. But with the establishment of the Austro-Hungarian Dual Monarchy in 1867 the area was once more bound to Hungary and remained under Magyar control until freed to join Rumania as a result of the Great War.

CORONATION MEDALS

The following pieces are representative of the medals struck to commemorate the coronations of the Kings (and Queens) of Hungary. As with others of the genre, they not only record the event but attempt to glorify the personage. In the time period represented here, the Hungarian King was usually a Habsburg, but not necessarily the Holy Roman Emperor. As an example, Ferdinand III, Emperor from 1637 to 1657, was crowned King of Hungary in December 1625. In 1687 the Hungarian crown was made hereditary in the house of Habsburg. The crown prince Joseph was crowned king that year. He became the Emperor Joseph I on the death of his father Leopold I in 1705. After the demise of the Holy Roman Empire in 1806 and the creation of the Austrian monarchy, the practice of crowning the heir presumptive as the King of Hungary took place once more with the coronation of Ferdinand I in 1830, five years before the death of his father Francis I. The last two Hungarian coronations, of Francis Joseph I in 1867 and Charles I in 1916, took place after these Monarchs succeeded to the Austrian Throne.

Parcae were the three Fates, the sisters Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos, the daughters of Night. According to pagan theology, they dispensed the thread of human life. The Romans were accustomed to call the Parcae by the name of Fata, and to give them the title of Dominae and Victrices, as with Venus Victrix. This very rare and interesting reverse type was struck only at Antioch and Cyzicus, by Diocletian and Maximian.
